

Sexual Abuse in Australia and New Zealand

Volume 5, Number 2, December 2013

CONTENTS

INTRODUCTION TO THE GUEST EDITORIAL	1
K. Seidler
A. Tamatea	1
GUEST EDITORIAL
E. McDonald
K. McGregor
ARTICLES
Restorative Justice and Sexual Offending: What Clinicians Need to Know About Possible Trial Process Reform in New Zealand S. R. Macaulay	4
Resisting Defence Access to Counselling Records in Cases of Sexual Offending: Does the Law Effectively Protect Clinician and Client Rights? E. McDonald	12
The Therapeutic Potential of Victim Impact Statements for Sexual Violence Survivors D. McGovern	21
Increasing Safety and Improving Healing: The Potential of a Specialist Sexual Violence Treatment Court Y. Tinsley	31
Evaluating Law Reform Using Victim/Survivor Stories From the Criminal Justice System G. Knowles	40
From Victim to Survivor – and from Survivor to Victim: Reconceptualising the Survivor Journey J. Jordan	48
Cost as a Barrier to Recovery: Survivors of Sexual Violence. S. Jülich, C. Sturgess, K. McGregor &amp; L. Nicholas	57
Vicarious Traumatization and Resilience: An Ecological Systems Approach to Sexual Abuse Counsellors' Trauma and Stress M. Pack	69
Call for Papers - Special Issue: Cultural and Indigenous Issues in Sex Abuse Practice and Research	77